New York in the 1970s was a tough place to live. The city's growing financial and social problems resulted in high crime rates and 41 poverty. Not much looked bright for the future of many New Yorkers, particularly 42 in poor neighborhoods. Out of this poverty, however, a new style of music would 43

Hip-hop was born one afternoon in August of 1973 in the South Bronx, New York. A teenager 44 Cindy Campbell asked her 16-year-old brother Clive to DJ a school party. Clive didn't have any good equipment. He picked out some records and 45 as DJ Kool Herc. The party was a huge success. Like Clive, some other kids were 46 to use their creativity to invent hip-hop, an new musical culture. 47

Hip-hop featured a 48 kind of performance called rapping. This new sound caught fire all over the world. Early hip-hop was not just music. It was a lifestyle. 49 the hip-hop community had no access 50 performing in clubs or dancing on stages, they took their creativity to the streets and made them their  $51^{-1}$  . There were four key parts to early hip-hop culture: the DJ, the 52, break-dancing, and graffiti art.

The job of the DJ was to keep the music flowing, but hip-hop DJs played music and made music. As the DJ played music, the rapper did a call-and-response to excite the crowd. Breakers 53 to hip-hop. They would show 54 their dancing skills while the breakbeat played. Hiphop culture also produced graffiti artists who began painting their special signatures on buildings, walls or subway cars, Now, rap music has grown to the point 55 it is heard in almost all forms 不甘平庸的路 of music today, from hard rock to country pop.

Passage 1

Look up in the sky! That thing buzzing by isn't a bird, a plane or a superhero. It's an unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV), or known as a drone. They are given the name UAV because they are not flown by a pilot. Instead, they are flown by remote control by someone on the ground or in a "mother" airplane flying nearby.

Drones may seem like a new invention, but the earliest version was developed by the U.S. military in World War I. Now drones are growing in popularity. Users have discovered that drones are particularly suitable for taking bird's-eye-view images. In the past, photographs had been taken from airplanes that flew well above the ground to avoid obstacles. This made getting close-up(特写) images very difficult. Drones, on the other hand, could fly much slower and lower, which made it easier to take clear images. Drones are especially valuable when disaster strikes. Earthquakes and without putting humans in danger. Wildlife protection areas use drones to keep an eye out for the dangers and to acome floods often make roads and airports impassable. Drones can monitor disaster and collect data dangers and to monitor animal activity. Businesses have recently used drones for customized delivery. It's possible that in the future, the pizza you order will arrive not by car but by drone!

As drone use increases, it brings new challenges. Regulators are concerned that drones may -网坛 WANN 7ikaoda.com 陪你走不甘平庸的路 cause a danger to airplanes. Unlike commercial planes, drones do not show up on flight radar. So

The purpose of these sites is often more to encourage the business rather than to make a profit. Website visitors loan money— as little as twenty five dollars— toward the amount each person needs. Investors get their money back, sometimes with interest, when the loan is repaid.

Other websites offer money to creative art projects. The sites describe CDs, books, films or mate other creative projects that need funding. People donate money in small or large amounts to the projects that interest them. Each contribution is a gift, not a loan, but donors often receive incentives, such as a copy of a completed CD or book a COM

Still other sites operate more like charities. They help people and groups collect money, such as groups that run food pantries(食物救助站) or people who need help paying medical bills.

Each microfinancing website has its own focus, yet they all have one thing in common; bringing www.zikaoda.com
